

Gihan, S. Farahat

5. Most clutch and egg production traits, BW and SL are genetically and phenotypically correlated to each other with high and significant values. Correlation between previous traits revealing that the estimate of these parameters could be a good indicator to the other parameters. Moreover, the high