(7)

fitness traits except HTE%, which indicated highly significant differences favoring realized correlated responses as a result of selection for HGR R_1R_2. It can be concluded that selection for high GR is more effective than selection for body weight because both insignificantly differed from ea _ ly