Abstract:

Water is considered the origin of everything, as in the concept of the Ancient Egyptian, the universe came from the Eternal Ocean “Nun” which was in itself a god in the Ancient Egyptian Ideology. Water helps in performing many vital operations for human beings, as it helps in swallowing, digestion, distributing nutritious elements, and in the process of excretion. Water helps in the balance of the human body, and it is the main component in the body of blood, Lymphatic fluid, Seminal fluid, Cerebrospinal fluid, as well as being part of the Body Secretions such as: milk, tears, urine, sweat, ...,etc. Body Secretions carried significant symbolism and great reference in Ancient Egyptian religious texts, as it represented a means of protection against evils and dangers and against the punishment of the gods. The Secretions also caused rejuvenation of the heart and prevented exhausting it. Secretions were released from the body to remove illnesses and diseases and helped in the holiness and embodiment in the form of the gods, as well as mobilizing the gods for the sake of the deceased :«Isis», «Shu», «Horus», «Hw, «DwA-wr» the eight gods of« HHw». Secretions that came out of the spirits fell to fill the lakes and rivers.

Secretions were related to myths, such as creation myths and mythological locations, such as: «Rostau» and the Island of Fire. Secretions also played an important role as they were connected to the gods and punishment of the hereafter, as well as the hope of the deceased not to have detestable Secretions that may ruin his body and lead to his annihilation or destruction.

In addition, the body expelled bad Secretions to get rid of rotten odors and be blessed with perfumes and good odors after that.
