

Archaeology Faculty

The Architectural and Decorative Elements on Islamic Architecture in middle Egypt through 19th Century A.D Century and the First Half of the 20th Century (13-14 A.H/19-20 A.D)

Archaeological and Documentary Study

A thesis for a Master Degree in the Islamic art and architecture prepared by:

walid abdel samea El-sayed Mohamed Mohamed Hamed

under the Supervision of

Prof. Dr. Atef Abdel daym

Professor at the Islamic archaeology

Prof. Dr. Ghadeer Dardeer Afifi

Ass. Professor at the Islamic archaeology

Faculty of Archeology-Fayoum University

1440 A.H/ 2018 A.D

– Abstract:

The study "The Architectural and Decorative Elements on Islamic Architecture in middle Egypt through 19th Century A.D Century and the First Half of the 20th Century (13-14 A.H/19-20 A.D) Archaeological and Documentary Study" aims to an explanation Architectural and decorative elements in Islamic architecture in middle Egypt In the period of Mohammed Ali's family(1805–1950) Depending on the documents ,The remaining buildings, and historical sources to reach to Provide a logical explanation of the architectural and decorative elements mentioned, Within its functional, aesthetic, economic, Psychologist and Community dimensions.

Therefore, the study began to explain the affecting causes of architecture in this period, Then explain the procedures of Licensing and construction, and building design methods, then study the types of buildings and their functions in the study region.

And finally, analysis of architectural and decorative elements By dividing them into structural, Communication and movement, preservation, Ventilation and lighting, Benefits and services elements, Depending on function, durability, beauty and economy scale.