

Faculty of Dar- Alo'lum
Department of Islamic law

Islamic Shari'a Condification (Trade Law)

according to the Professor: Sofy Abi Taleb

A Comparative Jurisprudential Study

Prepared by

Ramadan Abd Elmoufed Ahmed Ali
Demonstrator in Department of Islamic law

Under Supervision of

Prof. Wagih Abdel Qader Al-shimy

Professor of Islamic Law

Prof. Saber ELSayed Mashaly

Professor of Islamic Law

1437 H - 2015 A.D

Abstract

The thesis is entitled, " Islamic Shari'a Codification (Trade Law) according to the Professor: Sofy Abi Taleb : A Comparative Jurisprudential Study ".The research consists of an introduction, a preface, four chapters and a conclusion.

The introduction shows the study entry, the reasons of choosing the topic, the study aims, its method, previous studies, the study plan and the topics index.

The preface introduces a full interpretation of the professor; Sofy Abi Taleb.

Then, it shows the meaning of codification linguistically and idiomatically and the history of Islamic Shari'a codification is mentioned. Also, codification provisions are demonstrated.

Chapter one is entitled, "General Provisions in the Trade Obligations". It shows many fundamental and jurisprudential issues which demonstrate the general provisions of the trade obligations.

Chapter two is entitled, "Trade Selling" .It consists of two branches: the first one is "General Provisions" and the second one is "Specific Provisions of some Trade Selling Types ".

Chapter three is entitled, "Trade Mortgage". It is about the definition of mortgage and its legitimacy, debt mortgage, the utilization of what is mortgaged by the mortgagee, the mortgagee's lien and the foreclosure.

Chapter four is entitled, "Deposit in Public Warehouses and Brokerage".

It is about the definition of deposit and its legitimacy, the depositor's obligations.

Then, it shows the definition of brokerage, its provision in Islamic Fiqh, the fare terms, and the scientists' argument about giving the broker a certain amount of money, who is responsible for the broker's fare and the provision of the broker's embedding.

Conclusion includes the most important findings and recommendations that the research found