

Abstract:

This study aimed to identify the effect of using computer application to developing creative abilities for architecture students, tries to find the answer to several important questions about the relationship between using computer at the process of teaching architectural design and the effect of this relationship to developing of creative abilities for students in architecture, where everyone is calling now the necessity of utilizing the computer and software support digital design within the design studio, but do you output architecture of the can excrete the product of architectural creator, and whether they can contribute in the process of producing the work of architect creator , an efficient and can be achieved on the ground.