

Using the gynecological approach to achieve social protection, For women in hosting and orientation centers

Dr. Saad Eid kasem

Lecturer, Department of Social Work, Faculty of Social Work, Fayoum University

Study summary

First: the study problem

In recent years, the issue of violence against women and the various concepts related to it has become a subject of concern and concern in many countries of the world, and this concern comes as a result of the increase in violence against women in various parts of the world and its adoption of modern forms that will destroy the lives of women in a permanent increase. And, many successive studies have revealed the psychological, social, political and cultural effects on women exposed to violence, which requires the concerted efforts of all efforts in an integrated manner to overcome this phenomenon. The social protection of battered women by family, friends and community institutions has an important impact in facing the effects of violence on them

Second: The objectives of the study:

The study seeks to achieve a major goal represented in "determining the role of the gynecological approach to achieving social protection for women in the hosting and orientation centers."

Third: methodological procedures for the study:

- 1- Type of study: This study belongs to descriptive and analytical studies.
- 2- The method used: The current study relied on the social survey method.

3- Fields of study:

- A) The human domain: all the battered women, as well as the social workers in the centers for hosting and directing women, and their number is (56) individuals.
- B) Spatial domain: centers for hosting and guiding women in all governorates of Egypt.
- C) Time range: the period from April 2018 until the end of August 2018.

Fourth: Results of the study:

The results of the study indicated that the types of protection that women need from the point of view of the study sample are: economic and material protection, appreciation and respect, emotional protection, cognitive protection.