

Study summary

Social Work has an important and prominent role in social care institutions, whether they are private institutions such as associations for the care of prisoners and their families or governmental institutions such as aftercare departments as a way to reduce the return to crime again. It also extends a helping hand to the children of the prisoner and his family, who were afflicted after losing their family by entering prison. Therefore, the children of prisoners are among the groups most exposed to the problems and pressures resulting from the imprisonment of their family, which requires the necessity of achieving social protection for them.

Hence, the researcher has identified the requirements necessary to activate the programs of the Association for the Care of Prisoners and their Families in achieving social protection for their children.

This study is considered one of the descriptive studies and the researcher used the social survey method in a comprehensive inventory method for the children of prisoners who benefit from the services of the association and for social workers and experts in this field. These associations in order to reach requirements to activate the programs of these associations and in order to invest their energies and exploit their potential and achieve social protection for them.
