

Summary of the study

(The importance of future studies in The development of professional practice for social working)

Prepared by Dr: Mohamed Mohamed Hassan (Assistant Professor, in Faculty of Social Work)

Study problem :

in general Future studies are linked as one of the scientific methods that Associated with the development of thought and sights in reading future and Reading the future And the perception of its tracks potential and possible image . the mission of the future studies are predict the future ,so It is considered the evolution of human thought By reading the past and understand the present and predict the future.

The Future studies started since the beginning of creation, It is increased in importance in the early eighties and early nineties, so it's observe us what will be happened in

Societies and challenges, events and phenomena and problems and also Predict crises and Disasters ,so its important increased of human thoughts development and societies through set Scenarios can be predicted and controlled the future studies in social working can Enrich the knowledge and theoretical Basis through its From its entrances models and intervention methods and modes of intervention and practice to cope with events and developments future command

The study questions:

Study aimed to answer several questions:

1_ Is there a need for future studies to develop professional practice social service?

2_ What are the most important methods and tools that can be used in future studies for social service?

3_ What are the most important curricula and ways in which they can be used in studies for social service ?

4-What are the most important requirements for a future command in the service social studies? methodological procedures:

study type : Descriptive analytical study to reach the importance of future studies in the development of professional practice social service and identification of the most important tools and methods and methods and requirements for future studies .

The method used : The study used social survey quality of comprehensive and in-kind tools : Measure the trends form members of the teaching staff on the importance of future studies

Study results:

The study emphasized the importance of future studies in enriching the knowledge base and theoretical social service profession and also Development of methods and develop scientific models and portals professional practice social service .

As the study to the most important methods, techniques and methods used in future studies To counteract the need to combine more of the way a tool more than a method to integrate in order to access to the results of the more accurate and reliable,

The study also confirmed that future studies require many of the skills and expertise needed to specialized scientific thought and the degree of science and knowledge and ability to creative thinking and creative to predict the future more accurately possible