

Abstract

Usage of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work and developing the values of social peace among female university students Empirical Study applied on King Abdul Aziz university

Prepared by: Dr. Nadia Abdel Aziz Hegazi

First: Study Problem & its importance: Social peace has a great position and importance not only in the countries that suffer from disputes, wars or revolutions but in all countries as well. Providing the youth of Saudi society with the values of social peace realizes cooperation, nonviolence, respecting human rights, social harmony and understanding the different Civilizations. Due to the rapid successive changes and developments in all fields in Saudi community, there's an essential need to prepare youth, in general, specially female university students so as to make them good citizens who are able to bear responsibility and participate in society development and promotion and in creating conscious and aware personalities that respect the system of social peace values.

The preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work can have an evident role in developing social peace values among female university students. This is represented in teamwork value, social responsibility value, positive constructive dialogue, citizenship value and the value of behavioral discipline. These values are unanimously agreed by most of the previous studies and by the empirical studies.

Accordingly the study problem is identified in that question: Does the usage of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work result in developing the values of social peace among female university students in the Saudi community?

Second: Study concepts:

- ١- Preventive and rehabilitative approach in method of Social Group Work.
- ٢- The social peace values.
- ٣- Female university students.

Third: Study Objectives :

To test the influence of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work and developing the values of social peace among female university students. A group of sub-objectives spout out of this objective:

- ١- To test the influence of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work and developing the value of teamwork among female university students.
- ٢- To test the influence of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work and developing the value of social responsibility among female university students.

- ϣ- To test the influence of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work and developing the value of positive constructive dialogue among female university students.
- Ϙ- To test the influence of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work and developing the value of citizenship among female university students.
- ο- To test the influence of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work and developing the value of behavioral discipline among female university students.

Fourth: Study hypotheses:

This study sets out of the main hypothesis:

There is a statistically significant positive relationship between the usage of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work and developing the values of social peace among female university students. A group of sub-objectives Spout out of this principal objective:

- ϑ- There is a statistically significant positive relationship between the usage of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work and developing the value of teamwork among female university students.
- ϣ- There is a statistically significant positive relationship between the usage of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work and developing the value of social responsibility among female university students.
- ϣ- There is a statistically significant positive relationship between the usage of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work and developing the value of positive constructive dialogue responsibility among female university students.
- Ϙ- There is a statistically significant positive relationship between the usage of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work and developing the value of citizenship among female university students.
- ο- There is a statistically significant positive relationship between the usage of the preventive and rehabilitative approach in the method of Social Group Work and developing the value of behavioral discipline among female university students.

Fifth: Study methodological procedures:

- ϑ- Study type: This study belongs to the empirical studies.
- ϣ- Used method: The empirical method is used according to the type and nature of this study.
- ϣ- Study tools: The scale of "Social peace values among female university students.
- Ϙ- Study domains:

a) Spatial Domain: King Abdul Aziz university – Faculty of arts & human sciences – sociology & social work department.

b) Human domain: A group of female university students at King Abdul Aziz university – Jeddah - Faculty of arts & human sciences – sociology & social work department. The number of the group is (١٥) female students that the researcher used as an empirical and control group at the same time.

c) Time domain: The time domain of this study is determined to be during the period of performing the experiment which took three months from ١٥/٩/٢٠١٥ to ٢٠/١٢/٢٠١٥ (two meetings per week) the duration of each meeting is one hour.

Sixth: Field Study Findings: The field study concluded a group of findings. The most important finding is the validity of both the principal hypothesis and sub hypotheses of this study.