Political participation is considered the foundations of democracy through the expansion of universal suffrage and its extension in different degrees from one country to another for all members of society, where men are like women through legitimate institutions that encourage and facilitate political meetings and gatherings, the right to put posters and make contacts, and so on. Encouraging participation contributes to the application of legitimacy. Politics makes man a political being.

No concept was discussed on a large scale, such as the concept of participation, which has become widespread throughout the world. However, the meaning of participation is still unclear to many, in addition to the different definitions of it according to the different groups.

Political participation represents the finest expression of democracy because it is based on the participation of male and female citizens in the issues of the city, neighborhood or institution, and political participation falls within the framework of popular expression and the conduct of political affairs by all parties of society. The value of political participation is evident from the student's interest in and follow-up to public issues, follow-up of political events, participation in political discussions with his family members, colleagues, or teachers, and also the student's tendency to participate in electoral campaigns or participate in voting when it is available to him.

University students represent the elite among the youth within society, and the most important and effective element of its construction, especially in the field of demanding human rights in general, and political rights in particular, where all the elements of advancement, development and awareness of rights and duties are represented by working to adhere to the mechanisms and conditions of good citizenship.

There must be an increased area of interest in the political participation of students, the need to take into account the rapid developments that occur in society when dealing with issues related to youth, raising the level of youth awareness of the dimensions of the political and social conditions that society is going through, and from here the researcher's thought went to choosing the topic of the current research In determining the role of the new student union regulations in developing the political participation of students in universities.
