

Abstract

Title: The role of civil society organizations in making social welfare policies

Published in : the Journal of the Faculty of Social Work for Social Studies and Research - Fayoum University Issue (23) April 2021

Prepared by: Dr. Mohamed Ahmed Mohamed Abo-Elela

(Department of Development and Planning , Faculty of Social Work, Fayoum University)

The study belongs to the type of analytical descriptive studies that aim to monitor the reality of the level of practice of civil society organizations in their impact on the making of social welfare policies, the study aimed to determine the role of civil society organizations in making social welfare policies. Caritas Egypt has taken as a case study and a model to be followed due to its ability, through the educational integration project for the disabled, to issue ministerial decisions to integrate the disabled in schools. And the process of communication, participation and the mechanisms that it uses, as well as the problems it faces, and finally defining the future vision to activate the role of civil society organizations in making social welfare policies, and concluded that in order for this activation to take place, it must take into account the study of the history of the problem, the focus of attention of the welfare policy and its development and previous efforts to solve this problem and also open The space for others to discuss the organization in the problem, as well as coordination with government agencies, effective participation and cooperation with them, as well as coordination between associations and organizations so that they work as integrated units together, as well as the use of several mechanisms to influence policy-making, such as: the mechanism of citizen participation, media dialogue programs, and strategies for pressure, persuasion and negotiation.