

Research Summary

Planning to develop the performance of civil society organizations to face social problems for children at risk.”

Published search

Journal of the College of Social Work for Social Studies and Research
Faculty of Social Work - Fayoum University
Fourteenth Issue - January 2019

preparation

Dr. Yousra Galal El Din Mohamed Abdel Rahman

Lecturer in the Department of Development and Planning
Faculty of Social Work - Fayoum University

The childhood stage is one of the most important stages in an individual's life, as the type of personality that the individual will have later depends on it.

The child's experiences with his environment in which he lives are very important, as he is exposed to social and psychological problems that may occur to him continuously and repeatedly as a result of his exposure to many forms of violence, which may be a result of the caregivers' lack of knowledge of the requirements of this stage of development.

Therefore, the child needs someone to help him in facing his various problems. Therefore, the social service profession, as one of the specialized professions, is concerned with helping individuals to face the problems they are exposed to through its models or therapeutic methods, as well as through its various institutions, and determining the extent of its contribution to facing children's problems and starting Of the importance of the role of social work in general, and the method of organizing society in particular in helping these children to face these problems, so the researcher identified her main issue in this study in planning to develop the performance of civil society organizations to face the social problems of children at risk.