Title: Networking the Global Egyptian Heritage: Fayoum as a Case Study

Keywords: Egyptian heritage – Fayoum artifacts – Museums

Abstract:

The great number of Egyptian artefacts now on display in museums around the world indicates how important it is to link this heritage across the globe.

Fayoum, in particular, has been a principal region of outstanding historical significance throughout the history of Egypt, reflecting its special geographical and cultural position within the provinces of Egypt.

The Heritage of Fayoum in the world reflects the importance of the region in ancient times. Of particular note may be cited its prominence during Neolithic, Middle Kingdom, Graeco-Roman and Islamic times.

Today there are new opportunities for establishing links and connections; in directions previously unthought-of for many researchers. The paper will discuss the researcher's project concerning Fayoum heritage in the world museums with its possibilities and challenges to bridge the gaps between archaeology, museology and tourism.
